To the American Collective Stand®
The Combined Book Exhibit®
PubMatch*

At the 2012 Taipei International Book Exhibition

---

This is our first year exhibiting at the Taipei International Book Exhibition. We are pleased to present hundreds of books from a variety of publishers in our Collective exhibit. Executives from the various companies will be attending to discuss sales opportunities, foreign rights and translations.

This Directory makes it easy for you to identify potential partners, make appointments at our Reception Desk, or communicate with the right person via email, telephone or fax long after the Fair is over.

Be sure to visit our new web site at www.pubmatch.org, which matches publishers, agents, authors and illustrators from around the world.

Our American Collective Stand participants are also listed on our web site year round at

ABOUT THE BOOK

Brian D. Starr has written a work that is very appealing to those students or scholars of genealogies that date back to the Bible. In Knights, Romans, Greeks and God the bloodlines of the Christian world are explored as well as the interrelationships that date back to the Egyptians. Most Christians would consider the topic important because written history has been so hard to preserve, gather and collate. Sources have not been reliable and families who have authentic documents have not been forthcoming in volunteering information because Christianity has been too mired in violent struggles and what the author calls "other factors." The Bible, first, last, and always is the source of all knowledge and wisdom for Christian people for the axial age – the age when various (and contending) world religions rose out of pre-history. Foremost among these religions is Judaism (arguably the first religion to worship one God). Starr's work explores elements in Judaism such as the lineage of the Kings of Judah, Mary Magdalene's descendants and such and has traced lineages right into the middle ages (when records were more reliable and families can trust to trace their roots with more accuracy). The revenants of the Western world's founding families have had much scholarship dedicated to it. The forces of history have not been kind to those who have claims to being principals and Starr takes careful note that whatever secrets he has divulged in this work are those which have had supporting documentation in other author's works. The author's thesis, though, is original and should be acknowledged by the academe as a source book.

ABOUT THE BOOK

In this exciting read, children will meet a determined spider who begins to discover edacious appetite for human food. Despite being warned by her friend, Aranea's desire for the pieces of bubblegum resting on top of a table nearby continued to peak. Hence, the audacious spider then figured out a risky plan in order to get to these luscious gums. She boldly ventured out into the open, not minding the two children playing nearby. Upon being seen by one of these children, Aranea began running for her dear life. Her perilous path was not at all easy and smooth for there were so many obstacles that blocked her way. Nonetheless, these didn't thwart her. In fact, these barriers only elevated her longings.

Not wanting to eat another fly for a meal, Aranea was motivated to get a hold of these sumptuous-looking sweets. And when she finally did, she discovers a life-long lesson she will never forget. Readers will be thrilled to find out what she realized after chasing her desires. Filled with values about friendship, ambition and chasing one's cravings, this colorful read will definitely instill morals that both children and adults can learn from.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Chaz Franklin is a high school biology teacher at Pierce High School in Arbuckle, California. He is also an entomologist. The book's creation came from a question his son Charlie asked him one day when they were out walking in the forest.

When Franklin is not teaching he is an avid camper who enjoys fishing with his family and being a full-time dad to his two children. This is his second book. His first one is titled, "Oh Look Not Again, Your Shoe is Untied" it's about a unique creature called Fnergle, a creature that unties shoes.
