

Dr. Abdul Quader Shaikh
Senior International economist, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Dr. Abdul Quader Shaikh is a senior international economist and Regional Coordinator for Africa, Middle East and South Asia at Trade Information Center (TIC), U.S. Commercial Service, U.S. Department of Commerce. He coordinates business counseling to promote the trade, investment and commercial opportunities for U.S. companies, including joint ventures and counsels American business engaged in exports to Africa, Middle East and South Asian countries. He is constantly sought as a speaker at trade events on doing business in Middle East, India, and Africa. He also directs the India Business Center.

Prior to this he worked as industry economist at the U.S. Department of Commerce responsible for collecting, analyzing, and interpreting complex financial, economic and trade data and maintained a vast array of economic and business information. He also worked briefly at Import Administration and led a team of investigators to Canada on a lumber dumping case. Prior to this he was a senior policy advisor with the Economic Development Administration and designed economic and business development programs.

He was Deputy Associate Director for Policy and Market Development, Minority Business Development Agency, U.S. Department of Commerce. He developed programs and policies for the growth of minority owned business in the United States and supervised and managed a 35-person office.

Dr. Shaikh taught at the University of Massachusetts and served as Professor and Chairman of the thirty-member Business Administration Department within the Massachusetts University system at North Adams. He has taught in MBA and Executive MBA programs at Johns Hopkins, the University of Maryland, George Mason and Virginia Tech.

He has received his Ph.D. in economics from the University of Massachusetts and holds two masters and a law degree.