"Kathleen Salimena's beautiful tale of fantasy is a wonderful inspiration to children everywhere, reminding them that with dedication and hard work, they can have interesting lives and make their dreams come true."
Senator Edward M. Kennedy

On the sunlit island of Hvar, they wondered around and stopped for lunch at an outdoor café. It happened to be the King's favorite café by the sea, named Café Fleur-de-Lis. Katianna gazed at Hvar's medieval architecture, marble-paved streets and picturesque fishing port.

"Order what you like," the Queen told Katianna. From the café, they all watched a boat pulling a parachute. "I would like to try parasailing this week," the Queen let them know.

"The view from above will leave you awestruck," the King added.
